What is Equal Opportunities Audit?

- ✓ Tool for assessing a degree of implementation of equal opportunities for women and men and work/ life balance tools on company level
- ✓ Not inspection but development
- ✓ Focus on internal company processes
- ✓ Includes analysis of HR and institutional barriers
- ✓ Goal: improvement of company performance (CSR + profit)

What is monitored?

The audit looks at various topics. Some concern specific processes (recruitment, remuneration), others are rather horizontal and run through multiple processes (equal treatment of employers, internal and external communication, gender sensitivity)

- ✓ fair recruitment
- ✓ training and development
- ✓ gender (and other forms of) diversity
- ✓ handling complaints
- ✓ work/life balance, benefits and employee care
- ✓ remuneration
- ✓ communication and feedback
- ✓ transparency and fair treatment
- ✓ values
- ✓ team cooperation
- ✓ gender sensitivity
- ✓ redundancy and outplacement

Remuneration part of the Audit

- in the audit, we require the provision of gender pay statistics → (un)willingness of companies to provide them
- Pay directives (as a part of HR Manual) – what makes your salary? how do you reach the maximum possible salary?
- Contractually binding rule that “salaries are not talked about among employees” → transparency problem
- What GPG is sufficiently high to be classified as a problem?
- Gender stereotypes – man as the breadwinner who deserves higher salary regardless, linear career growth as an ideal-case scenario, horizontal and vertical segregation of the labor market
- Gender roles – men more frequently able and willing to work overtime, men as better salary negotiators
- Hay Methodology
- Public administration vs. commercial firms
